Proposition 187: Will it 'Save Our State' or 'Sink Our State?'

Story and photos by Roman S. Koenig

The weather was hot and so were the words, as four community activists debated the impact of Proposition 187, known as the "Save Our State" initiative, last week on campus.

The informational forum was presented Sept. 27 in front of the Commons building by Cal State San Marcos' Association of Latin American Students, the Associated Students and the Political Science Association.

The main subject of discussion was how the initiative would affect the economy and population of California. The initiative calls for barring illegal immigrants from receiving social services such as education and medical care, except in emergency cases. Assemblywoman Denise Moreno Ducheny (D-Chula Vista) and Augie Bareño, Southwestern Community College trustee, argued against proposition 187.

Get wealthy at university seminar

How can you minimize taxes and increase your spendable income? How can you maximize your assets? These and other topics will be discussed at Cal State San Marcos' Wealth Preservation Seminar, to be held on tomorrow (Oct. 6) from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the University Commons, room 206. The free seminar provides information on a variety of year-end tax planning techniques.

The seminar is being presented by the university's Planned Giving Committee, a group of professionals from the financial community whose goal is to increase public awareness of the benefits of charitable giving and estate planning techniques. Comprised of estate attorneys, certified public accountants, insurance brokers, trust officers, financial planners and investment brokers, the committee assists the university in creating resources for its future growth and development.

The speakers will be Michael Dunlap, certified public accountant with Dunlap, Klingensmith & Assoc.; Colin Fort, vice president of First American Trust Company; Patricia Venuti, a special agent with Northwestern Mutual Life; Greg Voisen, an insurance investment broker with North County Financial Associates; and Diane Ward, attorney-at-law, Walters and Ward.

CSUSM's Wealth Preservation Seminar is free and open to the public. Seating is limited, however. Call Jane Lynch at 752-4406 for information or to make reservations.

Additional telephone prefix coming

An agreement with Pacific Bell will provide Cal State San Marcos with a new telephone prefix of 750 in January 1995. The agreement will give the university access to all 10,000 numbers in the 750 prefix, which will allow for flexibility as growth continues over the years.

Current campus telephone numbers will remain the same. Pacific Bell will be providing referrals for eight months for a limited number of key telephone numbers. All other numbers will be referred to the main campus 752-4000 number. Callers will be transferred by campus operators to the requested extension.

Information concerning the new telephone service will continually be disseminated to the campus community.

One Deer new TRIO asst. director

Calvin One Deer Gavin has accepted the position of assistant director of TRIO Programs at Cal State San Marcos. He will be providing leadership to both Upward Bound and Student Support Services.

One Deer has wide experience in university program development and campus life. He is known for his speaking and training on multicultural and motivational leadership issues. His office is located in Craven Hall, room 1260. He can be reached at 752-4014.

Laying a foundation...

Psychology graduate program begins at CSUSM

By Roman S. Koenig

Being on top isn't everything.

This is the inaugural semester for Cal State San Marcos' graduate psychology program, and according to some of those involved in the program, starting something at the ground level has its advantages.

"How do you beat a group that treats you like family?" noted Diana Kyle, one of just seven students in the graduate program. Being at the ground level gives the first students an opportunity to set traditions for the future, she explained.

"I can think only of the benefits," said Kyle. "First, we get really individual attention from our advisers. They are able to know us from a wholistic point of view, from a family point of view and from a student point of view."

Because of the close atmosphere, graduate students in the psychology program are treated like junior colleagues by faculty, she said. "It gives us a completely different view of academia," she noted.

"I think we know we have a responsibility to set things up for the future," according to Kyle, "because we want to lay the groundwork for the students to come — and we want to make them work hard."

Working hard does not necessarily mean drudgery, however.

"It's fun, though. Isn't that strange, to have fun?" she continued, explaining the tremendous amount of reading and writing involved. "But it's really pleasant."

The family atmosphere Kyle explained of contributes to the learning process.

"(Where else do you have) seven people in your class where you can discuss things?" she asked. "As a result, we're able to hear all these people from different areas (of psychology) to discuss issues of the day."

"I'm really excited about the program because we've wanted to see it begin as soon as possible," added Dr. Gerardo González, psychology faculty member. "It's something I've really been looking forward to."

Planning for the graduate program began before González arrived at CSUSM. He joined the psychology faculty in fall 1991. González credited Dr. Nancy Kane, psychology graduate program director, with jump starting the program.

"One of the goals in bringing her here was to develop the master's program," he explained. "It really took off when she got here."

González said that the small number of students provides an intimate learning environment.

"They (the students) have a cohesion in their group — not only to study but to socialize as well."

device. Provided that the person is over 16, not an ex-felon or drug or alcohol addict, and has not previously misused a chemical weapon or committed an unlawful assault, a lifetime license will be issued to carry chemical defensive weapons approved by the state.

What type of weapon is best? Several choices exist, but only brands tested and approved by the California Department of Justice and Department of Health Services are legal. The most popular weapon is OC Pepper Spray, which projects a tight stream of liquid over a 10-foot area. OC Pepper Spray can cause intense pain, and often the victim experiences nausea and extreme difficulty in seeing and breathing for up to one hour. But unlike other forms of self-defense, OC Pepper Spray will not cause permanent harm, which will lessen a user's inhibition to spray it if called for. In short, it gives the potential victim of a crime time to get away. Currently, only one brand of OC Pepper Spray is legal in California — First Defense MK-6C.

There are also important restrictions on carrying and using chemical weapons. The license to use the spray is valid only in California. A person cannot bring such a weapon onboard any aircraft, nor can the weapon be brought into a courthouse or jail. The user of the spray can only use a chemical weapon to escape from imminent physical harm, or to assist another in doing so.

It must also be realized that chemical defensive weapons are not necessarily 100 percent effective against all attackers. Some persons under the influence of drugs, alcohol, or suffering from severe emotional or mental disorders may be resistant to the effects of chemical weapons. Chemical defensive weapons do not act as an impenetrable suit of armor. They are a final avenue of escape for those who might otherwise become victims of violence.

Women to WOW 'em Oct. 17

A small group of women on campus have been working steadily to host north San Diego County's participation in Women's Opportunity Week.

A county-wide event now in its 16th year, this year's theme is WIN, "What's Important Now?" Sponsored by the Office of the Associate Dean of Students, the committee's efforts are focused on offering workshops, seminars and programs that address the needs, interests and concerns of a wide variety of women. All programs are free and open to the public.

This year a reception featuring the new dean of Student Affairs, Dr. Francine Martinez, will be held Oct. 19 from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. in Commons room 206. All students, staff and faculty are invited. "There will be many choices for the week, so whatever your professional, educational or personal goals and interests, you will find the information and support you are seeking in the many programs offered," said Lea Jarnagin, coordinator of the week's events. The programs run throughout the day and into the evening. For further information call the Office of the Associate Dean of Students at 752-4935.

Plus more...

The Blade-Citizen is sponsoring a one day expo for and about women Oct. 18.

The event will feature exhibit booths and a marketplace, mini breakout seminars, educational-oriented services expo, as well as speakers, a luncheon, and a fashion show. Call 433-7333, ext. 234 for information and ticket reservations.

The organizers are also looking for volunteers for fashion show and seminar facilitators (the $10 admission charge will be waived). Those interested can call Willeen Hassler, 931-8400.

CSSA Report

By Brittany Crist

Organizations

Some things you should know... CSU San Marcos organization is Upward Bound

Did you know that...

...the Student Aid Commission is in great jeopardy of being shut down by the Federal Department of Education for alleged mismanagement of funds. If this occurs, the loan records would have to be transferred which will seriously delay student receipt of loan money.

...EOP programs are being restructured and/or dissolved at other CSU campuses such as Sonoma State, Northridge and Humboldt State.

...some CSU campuses publish the student evaluations of the faculty.

...AB2113 (Solis) TRUSTEE REFORM was just vetoed by Governor Wilson? This bill would have restructured the CSU Board of Trustees by reducing the total number of members from 24 to 20 and the way in which appointments are made. It would have removed the chancellor as an ex-officio member and ADDED one more student representative.

...In the 1988 election, 25.2 million 18- to 24-year-olds were eligible to vote, but no more than 36 percent, or 9.1 million turned out to vote.

...In the 1992 election, 43 percent of 18- to 24-year-old voters turned out, representing an unprecedented increase over 1988's turnout.

...the Federal Department of Education has proposed a ruling that would require students who receive financial aid to prove they have a high school diploma or it's recognized equivalent. (Federal Register, Vol. 59, No. 157, August 16, 1994)

These are just a few of the issues that the California State Student Association discussed Sept. 9-11th at CSU Northridge. If you'd like to get involved in the discussion the CSSA committee meets every other Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. Our next meeting is Oct. 5 in the Associated Students office (Commons 205).

The Upward Bound program at Cal State San Marcos continues to serve approximately 50 students from grades nine through 12 at local high schools and junior highs.

Planning meetings and events using fall, spring and summer sessions, Upward Bound participants are led through a program that encourages and supports their growth and development as future college students and productive members of the society.

The 1994-95 program began with the successful completion of the summer program. The program is an intense session where students are involved for six weeks, including a two-week residential component. Following the process of team building, leadership development and cross-cultural learning, Upward Bound staff and students work together to set a strong base for a successful academic year.

This year's summer program began in the San Bernardino mountains at Camp Abolardo. During the three-day stay, Upward Bound students participated in rope course. With the help of YMCA counselors, students were led through a series of courses designed to enhance confidence and the ability to achieve goals. Students were divided into small groups with the intention of team building. Each team was given the duty of completing individual rope courses which started at ground level and ended up approximately 75 feet above the ground.

The trip to the mountains was followed by a classroom component on the CSUSM campus. While on campus the students followed a schedule of college preparatory classes on a daily basis. Upward Bound faculty offered such courses as multi-cultural history, study skills and cross culture writing, exposing students to a more contemporary learning style which is present on college campuses today.

The students also had the opportunity to take field trips to various college campuses, the Museum of Tolerance and Wild Rivers water slides.

The Upward Bound summer program concluded with a residential component at the University of San Diego campus. At USD, students lived in the residential halls under the supervision of residential advisers and Upward Bound directors. The living and learning experience allowed students the opportunity to participate in college life first hand.

A leadership series was a new part of this summer's residential program. All students participated in a workshops every evening. Each workshop focused on a different aspect of leadership.

Through presentations by guest speakers, community leaders and campus faculty, students learned about self esteem, teamwork, cross-cultural communication, gender issues, public speaking and traits of good leaders. Students gave a three- to five-minute speech to round out the series. A leadership banquet was held and all who participated received certificates of leadership development.

For additional information on Upward Bound, call 752-4885. Upward Bound is a TRIO Program of Educational Equity in Student Affairs.

People in the News

Four professors are on leave

Four of Cal State San Marcos' faculty recently received fellowships or appointments and will be off-campus for the 1994-95 academic year.

W. Komla Amoaku, visual and performing arts professor, is taking a leave of absence to return to his native Ghana where he will assume the role of executive director of the National Theatre of Ghana.

Yareli Arizmendi, assistant professor in visual and performing arts, is taking a year off from teaching to pursue her acting career. Arizmendi co-starred in the highly-acclaimed film "Like Water for Chocolate," and produced and performed a one-woman play, "Nostalgia Maldita 1-800-Mexico." She had small roles in "Beverly Hills Cop III" and the "Cisco Kid."

Carolyn R. Mahoney, founding faculty and professor of mathematics, will work at the National Science Foundation (NSF) through an Intergovernmental Personnel Act agreement. Mahoney will serve as a program director for the Statewide Systemic Initiatives Program. She will work closely with the office head in the day-to-day management of the office and will be responsible for the research proposals submitted to NSF.

Patty Seleski, assistant professor of history, received a 10-month residential fellowship from the Newberry Library of Chicago and the National Endowment for the Humanities starting in September. Seleski will continue her study of English laboring women, popular culture and domestic service in the 18th century.

Do as I say, not as I drink

If you happened to be on campus the evening of Sept. 5, a reception was going on in Founders Plaza in honor of the university's fifth anniversary. The celebration included the founders of the university, faculty members, university staff and their guests. There were a few students and A.S. officers who also attended the festivities. All in all, it was a lovely celebration with guests enjoying food treats and drinking glasses of wine.

Wine, you say? Alcohol on campus? Wasn't it only last fall that Sigma Phi Delta, Kappa Chi Omega, Teke and Phi Delta Delta requested to host a Halloween party—in the Dome, but were denied a permit because they wanted to serve beer and wine at the party? The InterClub Council (ICC) denied permission for the Greeks to have their party and stating they would not support any activity where alcohol is served. The university went along with their decision. The question that comes to mind, is, "Who does the campus alcohol policy apply to?" The official alcohol policy does permit alcohol provided your group obtains the necessary approval and complies with campus regulations relating to the serving of alcohol.

Let's get this straight. It's alright for faculty or staff to host a party on campus and serve alcohol. Yet students and student organizations are held to a different standard, a "no alcohol" policy when it comes to on-campus activities. The message the university is sending is that there are two sets of rules: one for faculty and staff, one for students and student organizations.

Editorial

The Pride believes this kind of double standard should be abolished. If the CSUSM community is to live up to its "no alcohol" policy, then administrators, faculty and staff should be held to this standard as well. If the administration feels they are entitled to have their alcohol parties, then properly authorized and supervised student organizations should also be permitted to host events where alcohol is served. It is easier, however, for those who sit in ivory towers to make rules—"Do as we say, not as we do"—than it is to live by principles.

Pushing for nothing?

Stand on the fifth floor of Craven Hall and watch the bulldozers push dirt back and forth. Picture this process continuing for a year-and-a-half. How much pushing can dirt take? The contract was made in January. Work began in March. A director of campus planning and construction was appointed in April. But with all this pushing, the buildings (with architectural plans complete), will not be built. Voters made that decision at the polls last June 7 when they defeated Proposition 1C.

Passage of the proposition would have provided funding necessary for major new buildings. There will be no money to build the expected buildings. In less than a year the campus will open up for freshmen and sophomores and the existing classrooms are already full. Where will all the students go?

There are no easy answers to this dilemma. The search for alternatives is a challenge for practical-minded campus planners. Are there other ways to raise the necessary funds to put up needed buildings? Should the dirt-moving project stop until building funds are available? Should student enrollment be cut to fix existing classroom space?

Can we survive the short-run until we

Perspective

get answers for the long-run? As North County grows, so will the university. Will the growing public recognize and be willing to fund more needed classrooms? Is there sufficient public interest to support our public institutions of higher learning? The long-run answer is in the hands of the voting public.

The short-run needs are now. Dirt moving is underway and fortunately the money is there. To stop that project now would cause a serious delay when buildings are later funded. Land preparation is necessary in any event. Besides, there will be a new road providing a new campus access, service roads, a utility tunnel and more. On the flip side, delays in building construction can come as an advantage, especially when it allows for changing needs that dictate changes in building plans. Broad-based site preparation may allow for ad-

The world needs kindness

Have you ever noticed how people love to complain? Just go anywhere like a coffee house and the discussion of the declining state of the world is bound to come up. This negative attitude is highly contagious. The time that we spend in this state of hopelessness could be utilized in a positive way.

I always felt that my small contribution wouldn't even make a difference, so why bother. This mentality is not only wrong but probably felt among the majority. Two years ago my life was feeling a bit empty. Amidst my despair I decided to volunteer for Meals On Wheels and now I am proud to say that I am contributing for the good of society. Every time I go on a delivery I meet interesting elderly people who truly appreciate my participation in MOW.

My experience with Meals On Wheels has been such a small commitment, requiring only about four hours a month, that I felt that I could do more. I decided to join Circle K, a college-level division of the Kiwanis Club. Since my decision last year, I have been exposed to many of the charitable services the club is involved in.

My personal favorite is helping at the soup kitchen in Vista on Thursday evenings. I was apprehensive in the beginning but that dissipated after my initial visit. I was surprised at the colage of people. Many of them were articulate and educated. There seemed to be a subculture, with rules to follow, amongst the members. I was also surprised that everyone seemed to know one another. My visit to the soup kitchen was an intense awakening that put my life and priorities into perspective.

If you haven't gotten the message, I am trying to persuade some of you to join Circle K. Why not contribute to the solution of the problem rather than just complain and never do anything about it. If everyone contributed just one hour a week imagine how much better the world would be. There are not huge commitments to be a member of Circle K. You can commit as little or as much as you would like. There are two meetings this month available at two different time slots — 2 p.m. Oct. 13 in ACD-408 and 4:15 p.m. Oct. 17 in ACD-407. Please think about what I have said and come to one of the Circle K meetings. It will make you feel really good about yourself while being exposed to new faces and experiences.

Cal State San Marcos is not the only campus faced with the need for additional classroom space. It is not popular to look at many of the practical solutions to such shortages. Temporary modular buildings, leased with option to buy, is a common answer. But don't count on this as a temporary fix. At Cal State Fresno, temporary buildings have been in use for over a quarter of a century.

Nor is it popular to consider other short-run alternatives such as longer classroom hours, more night classes, larger class sizes, cancelled courses less well-attended, fewer labs, alternate-year course offerings, doubling up use of office space, off-campus use of facilities, curtailed campus growth.

As we look out upon the broad sweep of empty campus space before us and contemplate the dilemma it presents, we ask, "Is there a lesson to be learned by what we see?" Below us we look upon the bulldozers hard at work. We lift our eyes and see the new San Marcos Town Center in the distance. Ironically, Cal State San Marcos was a key element in the making of that sight. The town center required a lot of ground-work. But then the buildings went up, the city hall, community center, library, theater and shops — and many already occupied. How did all of this come about?

The lesson we learn from this comes from a very simple, common-sense quotation: "Suppose one of you wants to build a tower. Will he not first sit down and estimate the cost to see if he has enough money to complete it? For if he lays the foundation and is not able to finish it, everyone who sees it will ridicule him, saying, 'This fellow began to build and was not able to finish.'"

This quote, with its deep insight, is not from a text in financial management or real estate principles. It is 1,960 years old and comes directly from the Bible, known as The Word of Truth (Luke 14:28-30).

Students work hard

Editor:

On Sept. 20 there was an e-mail sent to the campus community regarding the 36 percent of College of Arts and Sciences students who made the Dean's Honor List. The author of the e-mail was exploring possible reasons why the percentage was so high. He suggested that CSUSM students are more mature and take their studies seriously, the faculty here at CSUSM are exceptional teachers, OR that the A&S faculty grade too easily.

As an A&S student, one of the two out of three that did not make the list, I can tell you that I fight for every grade that I get. The idea of the maturity of the students seems a lot more on target than the idea that professors grade too easily. I am shocked at such an allegation.

Volleyball Showdown

The Silver Shield of CSUSM will be hosting its first annual "Volleyball Showdown" on Saturday, October 1st, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Competition is open to two-person teams with two separate tracks (all male and coed/all female). Prizes will be awarded and all proceeds received from the entrance fee ($20.00 per team) will be donated to St. Clare's Home of Escondido for battered/homeless women.

If you are interested in participating, watch for one of our fliers on campus or contact our president, Rick Hernandez, at (619)967-6523. Come support a good cause as well as your campus!

Softball Tournament

Ok folks, just when you thought baseball season was over—we'll just continue the hype with another Softball Tourney!!

What? CSUSM's 2nd Annual Softball Tournament
Where? Bradley Park
Corner of Rancho Santa Fe & Linda Vista Drive
When? Saturday, October 15, 1994
Time: 9:00 AM

All four playing fields have been reserved! This year's event promises to be bigger and better than the first! We anticipate between 100 - 150 participants.

Last year Public Safety (the heat) beat Steve Weiner's (the Weiners) team in the final double elimination round. There is a trophy on display in Public Safety which will go to the "new" winning team this year! Six teams participated in last year's event, y que? (private joke!)

This will be round robin double elimination. Three pitch to your own team. Now the cost: $45 per team ($3 per player); 15 player maximum per team; 10 players on field at a time. Players must be 18 yrs & older. The fourth field will be reserved for the younger folks if there are enough of them to form a couple of teams. We'll have an adult to coordinate them (if an adult can!). Money must be turned in by October 7th to Delma Gomez, Human Resources. Kids play free.

Bring your own food. Some of the student organizations (clubs) may sell food as well! Bring your kids, family and friends! Contact the following folks to form your teams by e-mail:

Bobby Rivera, Public Safety (they already have a team!)
Deborah Coronado & Delma Gomez for staff
Jerry Gonzalez & John Copeland for faculty
Associated Students to form student teams

Teams start forming fast! Also, please bring your own gloves, bats, and any extras you may have! If I left anything out, you'll be hearing from me again.

Disclaimer: This is not a University sponsored event - simply a whole lot of folks who want to get together for a day of fun!

Volunteers Needed

Student Volunteers are needed to participate in the San Marcos Community Health Fair on Oct. 22. Also, students are invited to serve on the Drug and Alcohol Prevention Forum Planning Committee. For these and other volunteer opportunities, please contact Susan Mendes at Student Health Services, 752-4915..

Only moderate exercise needed to maintain health

I hope you were able to attend the health fair on Sept. 21st. If you were one of many to get your cholesterol and percent of body fat checked and found the result out of the normal range or to your disliking, now is the time to act. Follow up, more complete analysis, and counseling is available at Student Health Services.

One of the best methods to control cholesterol, body fat and maintain ideal body weight is, guess what, "exercise."

Most people believe physical exercise is beneficial to one's health and well-being; however, a frequent response to questioning about exercise is, "I just don't have time."

It is true that there seems to be a perceived or actual reduction in leisure time in the general populace. In students who usually are also working and may have family responsibilities, there is, no doubt, limited time. Along with this, many people believe that health benefits from exercise accrue only with strenuous exercise for long periods multiple times per week.

Well, studies are showing that you don't need a lot of time or have to be a "super jock" to obtain the benefits of exercise.

The American College of Sports Medicine recommends a regimen of 20 or greater minutes of relatively vigorous exercise performed three or more times per week as a minimum to maintain physical fitness.

A study compared the effects on fitness of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity exercise daily with three short 10-minute bouts of moderate-intensity exercise per day in a group of healthy middle-aged men.

Fitness effects on both groups were very similar and the authors feel, for many individuals, short bouts of exercise may be sufficient to maintain fitness and will be more likely adhered to over a longer period of time.

This definition of fitness applies primarily to prevention of cardiovascular disease. Other research indicates that lower levels of exercise can provide many of the health-related benefits formerly thought to be achievable only with vigorous activity.

Some of these health-related benefits pertinent to college students include stress reduction, improved mood, increased energy levels, weight reduction or weight control. Burning just 1,000 calories a week in moderate exercise such as walking, gardening and sports may be enough. Also, remember it is never too late to start.

So why wait, get active.

CSUSM Health Fair to become annual event

The first CSUSM Health and Fitness Fair was held on Wednesday, Sept. 21 in Founders' Plaza amid sunshine, music, and balloons.

Over 40 community health agencies and businesses provided information and free health screenings to over four hundred students, faculty and staff members. Two dozen free prizes were awarded.

Sponsored by Student Health Services, the event was very well received. As one student commented, "There was something for everyone."

Other comments included, "awesome" and "really interesting" and "the best event we've had on campus to date."

Due to the success of the event and the high level of student participation, this will become an annual event on campus each fall.

Students who have questions or need follow-up on health screenings may schedule an appointment at Student Health Services by calling 752-4915. The Student Health Center is located on the first floor of Craven Hall, and office hours are Monday - Friday 8 AM to 5 PM.

A.S. UPCOMING ELECTIONS

The Associated Students of California State University, San Marcos will hold its next election for Student Council Representative and Approval of A.S. By-Laws on OCTOBER 17, Monday and OCTOBER 18, Tuesday. The election will take place on campus, and polls, located on the Founder's Plaza will be open from 8 AM to 7 PM on both election days.

Students interested in applying for representative positions should pick up and drop off an application at the Office of Student Activities (Commons 203) as soon as possible. To be eligible undergraduates must be enrolled in a minimum of 6 units and graduate students in 3 units. The following seats are available:

College of Education/Post Bacclaureate Representative at Large (two) Undergraduate Representative at Large

Applications submittal deadline date is October 7, 1994. Forums will be held the week of October 10. Election results will be announced in the paper on November 2. For further information, please contact the Office of Student Activities at 752-4970. Good luck to all applicants!

ALL STUDENTS MUST HAVE A STUDENT I.D. TO APPLY AND VOTE

Arts & Culture

CSUSM will host an exhibit by artist Anne Mudge, with the participation of CSUSM students, as part of inSITE94. Titled "Heir Loom" Mudge's installation is a site-specific work which provides a context for experiencing a sense of continuity with San Marcos' past. The outline of 20 bodies will be excavated in each of the library courtyard's grassy squares. Charred remains of plants found at the site will fill the outlines and a filament will connect the body outlines to a sky grid suspended above the courtyard.

inSITE94 is a binational art exhibition sponsored by 38 non-profit visual arts organizations, including virtually all museums in the San Diego/Tijuana region. The exhibition will include 74 new, temporary art installations by more than 100 artists from 13 countries at 37 sites in San Diego County and Tijuana.

Mudge, a North County resident, studied at Idaho State University, Pocatello, and the University of Oregon, Eugene. She holds a bachelor's degree in Fine Arts. Mudge has exhibited widely throughout the United States. Her works were shown in an exhibition sponsored by the San Diego Museum of Contemporary Art and the List Visual Arts Center at MIT.

In addition to CSUSM, inSITE94 exhibit locations in North County include Palomar College, MiraCosta College, and the California Center for the Arts, Escondido. Other exhibits are located in downtown San Diego, Balboa Park, and Tijuana. Deborah Small, Program Director for CSUSM's Visual and Performing Arts, will have an inSITE94 exhibit at the Timkin Museum in Balboa Park.

Mudge's exhibit may be viewed at the CSUSM's library courtyard Sept. 27-Oct. 30.

For more information contact Deborah Small 752-4151 or Anne Mudge 990-5282.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

UNFORTUNATELY, THIS IS WHERE PEOPLE ARE PUTTING TOO MANY RETIREMENT DOLLARS.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They don't take advantage of tax deferral and wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that's a mistake you can easily avoid with TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs not only ease your current tax bite, they offer a remarkably easy way to build retirement income—especially for the "extras" that your regular pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less taxes now. And since all earnings on your SRA are tax-deferred as well, the money you don't send to Washington works even harder for you. Down the road, that can make a dramatic difference in your quality of life.

What else makes SRAs so special? A range of allocation choices—from the guaranteed security of TIAA to the diversified investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity—all backed by the nation's number one retirement system.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Call today and learn more about how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.

Benefit now from tax deferral. Call our SRA hotline 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016.

Ensuring the future
for those who shape it.™

CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016 for a prospectus. Read the prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

After the earthquake

As part of its Arts & Lecture Series, CSUSM's Friends of the Library are sponsoring a lecture by Dr. Susan C. Curzon on "Jump Starting After the Earthquake." The lecture is Oct. 7 at 7PM in ACD 102 on the CSUSM campus.

Dr. Curzon will present slides and a lecture on the Northridge earthquake, focusing on the library. As Vice-Provost of Information & Technology Resources at California State University, Northridge, Dr. Curzon will discuss the challenge of providing services after the devastating January earthquake.

Inter-Tribal bird singers

As part of its Arts & Lecture Series, CSUSM is sponsoring a performance by the Inter-Tribal Bird Singers on Oct. 19 at noon, ACD 102.

Some of the oldest music in America, Bird Songs are a unique body of music indigenous to southern California and western Arizona. No tribe claims authorship of the songs. Due to the widespread use of the songs by so many tribes across varied geography, it is thought that the songs are remnants of the ancient groups who were in California from the time of the Ice Age. Exact dates cannot be established but it is possible that this music comes from traditions as far back as 25,000 years.

In Search of Gold Mountain: a Photographic History of the Chinese in San Diego will be on display Oct. 7-Nov. 4 in the CSUSM Library. The exhibit was designed and constructed by Murray K. Lee, a member of the Board of Directors of the Chinese Historical Society of San Diego.

The exhibit traces the origins of the early San Diego Chinese. It describes when and how they arrived and their early work experiences. Also shown are organizations and social activities, Chinatown, and the anti-Chinese movement. Recent arrivals are illustrated with photos and biographic sketches surrounding a map of their areas of origin in China and Southeast Asia. A group of panels shows contemporary activities, accomplishments, and the results of a successful acculturation process.

A reception will mark the opening of Gold Mountain on Oct. 7 from 3-4:30 PM in the CSUSM Library. Both the exhibit and the reception are free and open to the public. The exhibit may be viewed during regular library hours: Mon.-Thur., 8 AM-9 PM; Fri., 8 AM-4:30 PM; and Sat., 10AM-4 PM.

Festival string quartet at CSUSM

As part of its Arts & Lecture Series, CSUSM is sponsoring a concert by the Festival String Quartet on Oct. 11, at noon, in ACD 102. The quartet will perform the music of Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn, and Ives.

The Festival String Quartet was founded in 1971 as the Festival String Trio by first violinist, Mary Karo. Other members are Judy Hendershott, second violinist; Mary Gerard, violist; and Jenny Holson, cellist. All are experienced musicians who have played with the San Diego Symphony, the San Diego Opera, the San Diego Chamber Orchestra, and the California Ballet Orchestra. The concert is free and open to the public. Call 752-44366 for additional information.

TICKET INFORMATION—Tickets may be purchased at the University Store during normal business hours or by phone (752-4730). Tickets can also be purchased at the door prior to the event, unless the performance is sold out. Ticket Prices—$3 CSUSM students, senior citizens, $5 General Admissions. Children under 12 free.

RECYCLING PROGRAM SURVEY RESULTS

Prior to the end of last academic year, the Solid Waste Reduction Planning Committee distributed a survey to the entire campus community. The purpose of the survey was to evaluate the initial recycling program and to make improvements where necessary. The results are as follows:

96% recycle on campus;
93% recycle at home;
90% knew what items CSUSM is recycling;

80% were aware of the campus recycling program through observance of recycling containers, brochures and articles in The Pride;

76% felt there were enough recycling containers on campus;

70% felt there should be recycling containers in the parking lots;

62% said the CSUSM program made them more aware of and changed recycling habits; and 78% found CSUSM's recycling program effective.

Of 3,000 surveys distributed, 296 responded.

Thanks to all who took a few minutes of time to complete and return the survey.

Questions or comments regarding the recycling program should be directed to Support Services, 752-4520.

CSUSM is dedicated to working together to make a difference. We are committed to improving the environment and preserving our natural resources.
